

Safe Summer

How do we ensure safety in the summer?

The same way we do throughout the year – by having open lines of communication with children, and making sure that when they talk, especially about the things that upset them or make them uncomfortable, we are ready to listen.

By being proactive in ensuring that summer camps and programs have safety protocols that prohibit inappropriate and unsupervised interactions between adults and children – and that their staff are trained in what to look for and how to respond to inappropriate behavior.

And finally, and perhaps most importantly, by understanding that we all have a role to play in keeping kids safe – whether they are our own or someone else's.

That's why National Children's Alliance launched the #ItsYourBusiness Campaign.

This year-round prevention campaign asks each and every one of us to take responsibility for safe kids.

Learn the signs of child abuse and grooming and how to make the report.

Whether you're a neighbor, family member, counselor, coach, or just a friend, you can't depend on anyone else to do something about what might be happening. It's up to each of us to take action to protect children.

This summer let's do all that we can to keep kids safe, and to help them make happy childhood memories to last a lifetime.
